

Migrant Ed Family STEM Night Tie-Dye

STEM: Tie-Dye

When we decided to do tie-dye again, we did not want to do t-shirts, like last time. Instead we decided to do tote bags, backpacks, fanny packs, handkerchiefs, aprons, socks, and hair scrunchies.

Upon receiving all the items, we removed all the tags and packaging, then they were washed. Sadly, the aprons shrunk so much, they were only good for the children. This ended up okay, as we will be cooking in 3 weeks for E-Week.

All but one child attended, plus all but 1 parent/ guardian. Not only did the adults attend, but they participated also and had a great time tie-dyeing their own things. We even had our two newest community members, Karlene Wassily and Rea Joe, born in Dec. and Jan. respectively.

Pictures above L to R: Samantha Clark & Pauline Wassily helping Anderson & Zeke Joe, Karen Wassily having fun, John Henry Norbert showing off his skills, Samantha Clark posing for the camera.

Everyone participating in tie-dyeing

Taking a break for a snack, and papa holding baby Karlene.

I can do it!!!

Alexis Joe with her brother's door prize, going around wanting to tie-dye too.

Too Much Dye

Eden Gardiner-Aikins got a little overzealous with the dye solution, but he had fun doing it.

Kathleen Wassily

Mother, Kathleen, had fun making her own tie-dye items.

Getting the Design Right

Makenzie, Jason and Mary,
working to get their designs
just right.

