Leadership Inservice August 5-6, 2009 :: New Teacher Inservice August 7-8, 2009

All Staff Inservice August 10-12, 2009

LEADERSHIP INSERVICE SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Note to Principals and Lead Teachers: Inservice for site administrators and district office personnel begins at 8:00AM on Wednesday, August 5, 2009. Please make your own travel arrangements to Dillingham, and plan to be in Dillingham at District Office on Tuesday evening, as we have a busy few days planned and a lot of exciting topics to cover. Wednesday's time will focus on district programs and procedures. Wednesday and Thursday will be spent working on several leadership and school improvement topics. On Friday, site administrators will have a special RTP session with George Venetis. The RTP session will be done by 2:30PM so people can get an early start home on Friday.

Our Thursday presenter, Dr. Gary Whiteley, has been a public school educator for twenty-nine years. He has served in numerous roles at the school-level and district-level; including classroom teacher, school principal, and assistant superintendent. Gary was a research associate with the Center for Research and Evaluation at the University of Maine. He served in numerous capacities for the Alaska Department of Education and Early Development. Gary participated on the Technical Review Committee for the Alaska State Assessment System and assisted with negotiations with US DOE for the NCLB Accountability Workbook Plan. Gary's interest in professional development for school principals was sparked in the 1980s by involvement with the International Network of Principals' Centers at Harvard University. Dr. Whiteley has been the Director of the Alaska Administrator Coaching Project for the last four years.

RESPONSIBLE THINKING PROCESS (RTP)

RTP is a process that teaches respect for others by fostering responsible thinking. This unique classroom discipline process is both non-manipulative and non-punitive. It creates mutual respect by teaching students how to think through what they are doing in relation to the rules of wherever they are. This gives students personal accountability for their actions. The key component of this classroom discipline process is its focus on how students can achieve their goals without getting in the way of others who are trying to do the same thing. In short, it teaches students how to respect others.

For children to succeed, they must believe you care and have confidence in their ability to solve problems. Always ask questions, in a respectful, calm, curious voice. Never punish, reward, lecture, or yell, because trying to control another doesn't work. Avoid excuses, don't ask why. When disruptions occur, ask:

- What are you doing?
- What are the rules? or Is that ok?
- What happens when you break the rules?
- Is that what you want to happen?
- What do you want to happen?
- What will happen if you disrupt again?

These six basic questions help guide students through the process of becoming responsible for their own actions and are at the heart of the Responsible Thinking Process.

"RTP reduces the incidence of school discipline problems, ranging from minor disruptions to violence. When there are disruptions – and there always will be, at least occasionally – RTP provides students with an effective means for resolving their issues in a calm and respectful atmosphere. Because this process doesn't attempt to control or manipulate students, there is a reduction in their anger and frustration."
– Ed Ford, Creator of RTP

Sally Eberhart is recently retired from the Anchorage School District where she spent 19 years as an elementary teacher and 7 ½ years as part of the Instructional Technology Department. In that role she worked closely with teachers and students at eleven schools, providing training and support. In addition, she was involved in a number of district wide technology projects. Recently, Sally joined the Apple Professional Development team in Alaska working on the AASB Consortium for Digital Learning 1:1 laptop project being implemented across the state of Alaska. She has been traveling to different parts of the state working with teachers and students involved in the 1:1 program for the past year. She took part in our technology camp in New Stuyahok a year ago and returns this fall for more training.

Robin Johnson has worked in the field of education for 24 years. She grew up in rural Alaska and returned to her home community of Nome to teach at the elementary level after earning a degree in Childhood Development and Elementary Education from Western Washington University. Robin became a member of Alaska's Apple Professional Development Team in 2008 and loves working with the Consortium for Digital Learning Districts and Apple. She has a passion for digital story telling which led her to the position as chair of the iDidaMovie project while serving as an ASTE Board member. In 2001 Robin was recognized by ASTE as the Technology Teacher of the Year and she was selected as an Apple Distinguished Educator in 2005.
